Module 3

Special Enrollment Provision

Special Enrollment Provision

What's the difference?

Special Enrollment Provision

Special Qualifying Event

Life Event

Special Enrollment Provision

The Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act (HIPAA)

- Federal law - Allows an employee to enroll in a group health plan due to certain life events
- Special enrollment requests can be submitted for:
 - ❖ Health
 - ❖ Dental
 - ❖ Vision

Special Enrollment Provision

- If you do not enroll in medical, dental or vision coverage when you are first eligible, you can only apply later through SPECIAL ENROLLMENT due to certain life events (or during Annual Enrollment)
- All life events are not SPECIAL QUALIFYING EVENTS (SQE). Some life events such as birth, marriage, and adoption are considered regular enrollments unless enrolling other previously eligible dependents.

Special Enrollment Provision

- Reasons for Special Qualifying Event include:
 - ✓ Divorce;
 - ✓ Legal separation;
 - ✓ Loss of eligibility;
 - ✓ Termination of spouse's employment;
 - ✓ Employer's discontinuation of contribution to the dependent's insurance coverage (total contribution, not partial);
 - ✓ Spouse's work hours reduced causing loss of eligibility;
 - ✓ Coverage that has reached the lifetime maximum;
 - ✓ Loss of TennCare other than non-payment of premium

Review Questions

Special Enrollment Provisions

1. What does HIPAA stand for?

Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act

2. What types of coverage can a Special Enrollment be submitted for?

Health, Dental, and Vision

3. If an employee does not enroll in coverage when first eligible, are they able to enroll at a later time?

Yes. The employee can enroll if the experience certain Life Events, Special Enrollment Provisions, or during Annual Enrollment (AE).

Special Enrollment Provision

- A SPECIAL QUALIFYING EVENT (SQE) can occur when you add previously eligible dependents at the same time as newly acquired dependents for any of the reasons below:
 - A new dependent spouse is acquired through marriage
 - A new dependent newborn is acquired through birth
 - A new dependent child is acquired through adoption or legal custody (Adoption includes placement with intent to adopt)
- The request must be submitted within 60 days of acquiring the new dependent

Special Enrollment Provision

NOTE: If an employee only wants to add a newly acquired dependent, this is treated as a regular enrollment and is not a Special Qualifying Event (SQE).

Special Enrollment Provision - Example

Employee Only and Employee + Spouse

Example

Enrollment:

- Employee Only, or
- Employee + Spouse

Scenario: An employee did not enroll when initially eligible as a new hire. She was recently married and is not sure whether she wants to enroll just herself or herself and her new spouse.

Is she allowed to enroll in Single coverage?

And, IF SO, what type of enrollment would this be?

Special Enrollment Provision - Example

Employee Only and Employee + Spouse

Example

Enrollment:

- Employee Only, or
- Employee + Spouse

Can she enroll in Single coverage?

Federal regulations allow that she can enroll in any coverage level for which she is eligible.

If she chooses employee only, she should be aware that she will not be able to enroll her spouse at a later date unless they experience another SQE or apply through an annual enrollment period.

Which Type of Enrollment?

SQE

Special Enrollment Provision - Example

Single Coverage

Example

Enrollment:

- Employee - SINGLE Coverage

Scenario: An employee recently married and wants to enroll her new spouse. She is already enrolled in Single coverage and only wants to add the spouse to coverage.

Would this scenario be considered a SQE?

No. It would be treated as a regular enrollment.

NOTE: Spouse only coverage is not an option for an active employee. The employee must be participating to add a spouse.

Special Enrollment Provision - Example

Add New Spouse/Natural Child/Adopted Child

Example

Enrollment:

- Employee - SINGLE Coverage

Scenario: She is married recently and wants to add her new spouse. She also wants to add two stepchildren and a previously eligible natural child. Documentation submitted show that the children meet current eligibility criteria.

Would this scenario be considered a SQE?

Yes. Because the employee not only wants to add the new spouse, but also a previously eligible dependent, this is a SQE.

Review Questions

Special Enrollment Provisions

1. For what instances can you add previously eligible dependents at the same time as newly eligible dependents?
 - When a new spouse is acquired through marriage
 - A newborn is acquired through birth, and
 - A new dependent is acquired through adoption or legal custody
2. If an employee did not enroll in coverage when first eligible but gets married, can the employee enroll in single coverage or do they have to enroll in Employee + Spouse?

The employee can enroll in either Single or Employee + Spouse coverage.

Review Questions

Special Enrollment Provisions

3. If an employee has single coverage and get married and wants to add the spouse, is this considered a SQE?
- No. This is a regular enrollment because the new spouse was not previously eligible.
4. If an employee has single coverage and gets married and wants to add the new spouse and natural children (who were never enrolled), is this a SQE event?

Yes. This is considered an SQE because the natural children were previously eligible.

Can all the dependents be added?

Yes.

Special Enrollment Provision

Effective Date

If enrolling due to loss of other insurance coverage under another plan, options for coverage start dates are:

- Day after the loss of other coverage, OR
- The first of the following month

EXCEPT IF:	Effective Date
Enrollment is due to marriage	The date of marriage or the first day of the next month
Enrollment is due to birth, adoption, placement for adoption, and legal custody	The day of the event

Review Questions

The day after loss of other coverage or the first of the following month.

2. T/F: The effective date options for birth, adoption, or legal custody are the date of the event or the first of the following month.

False. The effective date can only be the date of the event.

Special Enrollment Provision

Important Reminders
